Regents Split Over Presidency; Miller, Watkins Tops

An informal tally taken during Saturday's executive session of the West Texas State University board of regents resulted with Dr. Bill Miller and Dr. Lloyd Watkins showing equal strength as candidates for WTSU president, an informed source told The News this week.

The source confirmed reports from at least two regents who this week said the regents were split during their executive session on who should be next president of the university.

The source said the regents assigned each of the four presidential candidates a rating and the result was equal ratings for Miller and Watkins.

Dr. Leon Pope, associate dean of the School of Agriculture at Texas A&M, and Dr. T. Paige Carruth, WTSU vice president for student affairs, are also candidates for the presidency.

Miller, director of higher education at North Texas State University, and Watkins, president of the Iowa Association of Private Colleges and Universities, were among the four to visit the campus in early May to meet with faculty, students and administrators.

Board Chairman Cloyce K. Box told reporters following Saturday's executive session, during which a decision on the next president of the university was expected, that he expects a decision this week.

Regent Don Curry of Fort Worth told The News the seven regents who attended Saturday's session on the WTSU campus were not unanimous in their feelings about who should be next president. He said no official vote was taken on the matter.

"We tried to ascertain what all our opinions were," he said, "but I wouldn't really call it a vote."

Curry said all four candidates appear to have support from one or more regents.

"There's still the possibility some other candidate will come forth at this time," he said. "We're open minded on it."

Regent B. Raymond Evans of Tulia said the regents are split on who the next president should be.

Regent Kent Hance of Lubbock had no comment when asked about the board's feelings on the presidency.

Regents are scheduled to meet this week to make a final decision.

Box said the reason for delay of the decision is so Patrick Rutherford of Houston and Wayne Owen of Lubbock can be in attendance. Rutherford and Owen were absent Saturday.

Curry said he expects the meeting to be called for Saturday, possibly in Dallas.

Dr. James P. Cornette, president of WTSU since 1948, was promoted to chancellor Saturday by the regents.

Beef Recipe Wins For Canyon Cook

Mrs. Dean Willmon's husband may not like her Brewer's Beef with Surprise Noodles, but the judges at the Texas Grain-Fed Beef Cook-off in Austin loved it.

They liked it so much, in fact, they awarded Mrs. Willmon, a 28-year-old Canyon housewife, the top prize in her category in the cook-off contest.

Sponsored by the Texas Department of Agriculture, the cook-off drew 7,000 contestants in four classes.

Mrs. Willmon won $200 after cooking up her special recipe for the judges recently in Austin competition.

Previously she had won the regional cook-off.

"My husband doesn't like it," Mrs. Willmon admits. "But, I thought it was pretty good."

It was several months ago when Mrs. Willmon, shopping at a local grocery store, came across an entry blank for the cook-off contest.

She entered four recipes, one in each category.

The recipe which won, a beef stew simmered in beer and served over noodles with sour cream, pineapple and mushrooms, is a Mrs. Willmon original.

"I had tried about a year ago a vaguely similar recipe for stew simmered in beef," she said, "but, I really made this up."

Mrs. Willmon is not one of those cooks who learned the secrets of the kitchen when a youngster.

"My mother and I always had a fight when we were both in the kitchen, so I never really learned to cook," she said.

When she went away to Abilene Christian College, Mrs. Willmon was forced to cook and she learned.

Mrs. Willmon likes her winning recipe although she says "it smells terrible while cooking."

She'd only prepared it once before sending the recipe off to the contest.

And, although her husband doesn't care much for eating the recipe, "he's glad I won."

Mrs. Willmon is a 1971 graduate of ACC where she received a degree in secondary education.

Currently, she's a federal meat inspector at Glovers in Amarillo.

She and her husband have two sons, Rusty, 2, and Trent, 4 months.

Mixed Feelings Aired On Pot Bill

"It's better than I feared but worse than I had hoped," said Randall County District Attorney George Dowlen of the Compromise Bill now awaiting the governor's signature which would make possession of four ounces or less of marijuana a misdemeanor.

Mixed feelings about the bill, which passed 84-58 in the Texas House and 24-7 in the Senate, were also expressed by Randall County Sheriff W. C. "Cliff" Longest and Canyon Chief of Police Al Stewart.

Tabling a proposal for legalization of marijuana, as well as rejecting another to make possession of less than one pound a misdemeanor, the Texas legislature's bill leans heavily upon fixing penalties according to the amount of the drug in possession. These quantitative guidelines are being eyed warily by city and county law enforcement officials.

Sheriff Longest says the reduction of the penalties of possession from a stringent penitentiary offense carrying a sentence from two years to life imprisonment to a misdemeanor of under 4 ounces possession is a welcome one.

"So many of our youngsters have been experimenting with grass, and when we catch them, we just don't feel like they belong in the pen," he said.

Stewart foresees many difficulties in enforcing a law which leans so heavily on quantitative analysis. According to the bill now awaiting Governor Dolph Briscoe's signature, possession of up to two ounces would carry a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine. The penalty for possession of from two to four ounces would be a year in jail and a $2,000 fine, and possession of over four ounces would remain a felony which could be reduced to a misdemeanor at the discretion of the trial judge with a year in jail and a $2,000 fine as punishment.

Stewart says that a law based on judging the magnitude of the crime by the amount of marijuana possessed presents difficulties, since marijuana seldom is bought unmixed with other materials, including alfalfa and cigarette tobacco. The latter would have to be separated out from the actual marijuana and then measured.

"And what do you suppose the sellers are going to do? Why they'll go out with less than four ounces of grass, sell it on the street, come back and get some more," Stewart says.

Under the Compromise Bill, according to Dowlen, a second marijuana offense, regardless of quantity possessed would be treated as a felony.

Dowlen says he was opposed to the strong movement in the Texas legislature to fix less than one pound of marijuana as the dividing line between misdemeanor and felony. Although this measure was suppressed, Dowlen still feels the

WT Officers Fund Stipend

The West Texas State University Administrative Council voted Tuesday to contribute any salary increase next year to the WTSU Student Scholarship Fund, Dr. James P. Cornette said.

The 15-member council is composed of the university president, four vice presidents, six academic deans, the dean of admissions, librarian, director of public services and director of student financial aids.

Dr. Cornette said the recent legislative appropriation to the university for 1973-74 made mandatory salary increases for all non-instructional personnel.

However, there were no general faculty salary increases included, he said.

The council decided that "one of the greatest needs of the institution is a greatly expanded program of student scholarships," Dr. Cornette said.

He added that the council voted to "give whatever salary increase may be received for next year as a donation to the Student Scholarship Fund."

Although he was not given a salary increase by the Legislature, Dr. Cornette said he also will make a donation to the fund.

He said it was not known how much the increases would be.

Planting Proceeds For Sorghum Crop

Randall County farmers' biggest money crop is going into the ground.

Planting of grain sorghum is underway in the county and local observers expect the largest acreage in many years to be planted.

Prices are good and acreage has been thrown open by the federal government and County Agent John Brazzill sees both as indications that one of the largest grain sorghum crops in many years will be planted and hopefully harvested next fall.

Exact figures on how many acres of grain sorghum have been or will be planted are not available, but Brazzill said it's a good bet that all available acreage not already filled with wheat will be planted in the grain.

Donald F. Lloyd of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said more than 300,000 acres of land in the county are available for farming this year.

In the past, federal controls have been used to cut down the amount of acreage used to grow feed grains. But, action by the government last fall has released the acreage for planting.

As a result, a record wheat crop is currently maturing now in Randall County fields, and a possible record crop of grain sorghum is anticipated.

In 1971, the most recent year listed in available figures, 104,000 acres of grain sorghum were planted and that acreage produced more than 5,200,000 bushels of grain sorghum.

In 1971, the grain sorghum sold for about $1 per bushel. Right now the price is somewhere between $1.40 and $1.50 per bushel, according to Brazzil.

"It's the biggest consistent cash money crop Randall County has," he said. "The reason is that most of it is irrigated."

Brazzil estimated that more than 50,000 acres of grain sorghum cropland will be irrigated this year.

In most areas of the county, the agent said, the planting is going well—on the heel of near-record moisture during the spring months.

Sporadic rains recently caused many farmers in areas to be late in preparing their seed beds and several farmers are having problems getting an initial stand.

Most of the dryland grain sorghum will be planted in early June, Brazzil said, before the start of the harvest of what could be a record wheat crop for the county.

Brazzil predicted that cropland not used for wheat this winter will be planted in grain sorghum.

Even then, he said, it may be a toss-up this year on which crop is the big money crop for local farmers.

"There have been times in the past when the income from the sale of wheat proved it to be the number one grain crop," Brazzil said, noting that wheat saw its heyday in the mid-1950s.

For the past 15 to 18 years, he said, wheat has been a surplus crop and grain sorghum has taken the lead as a money crop.

"This year it will be very close," he said.

He anticipates wheat will be a "significant cash crop" this year, which could even surpass grain sorghum in income.

State Won't Pay Debts To Canyon Merchants

The attorney general of Texas has, for the second time in four years, ruled that the state cannot pay more than $2600 in debts owed several Canyon and Amarillo merchants.

State Rep. Bryan Poff said Tuesday he has learned the attorney general has ruled the bill cannot be paid under current state law.

The state, specifically the state Parks and Wildlife Department, owes $2649 to 15 Canyon and Amarillo merchants for merchandise purchased by a former superintendent at Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

"There's no question the state owes them," Poff said, "but the parks and wildlife can't pay them."

Poff termed the statute "a bad law" and said it is not right "when the state can owe people money and can't pay them."

To the merchants, Poff said he feels the only way now they can collect their money is "to file some lawsuits."

The News learned of the state debt in early January 1973 and heard the following story from at least two of the 15 merchants involved.

Jerry Mullican, superintendent at Palo Duro Canyon who was fired in August 1968 for allegedly operating a slush fund, purchased numerous items during his tenure here to upgrade or Buffalo Lake Part Of Co?

County Judge Woody Pond returned from a brief vacation this week and said it's not beyond the realm of possibility that Randall County take over and operate Buffalo Lake.

Pond, who said he has not conferred with county commissioners about the possibility, said he is very much concerned that the lake not be closed to the public.

A federal official from New Mexico recently told Paul Ferguson, manager of the lake, that Buffalo Lake is one of 26 lakes scheduled to be closed if funding is not forthcoming next fall from Congress.

At Pond's urging, the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission has also written the New Mexico official stressing the importance of the lake to the area.

"As judge of the (commissioners) court, I'm very much interested in seeking it continue open and available to the public," Pond said. "Of course, they can't keep it open without maintenance of some kind.

"We might work out a joint operation through some grants we could get to operate it."

Pond said federal funds are available in grant form for recreational purposes and he was optimistic that, if need be, the county could obtain the grants to continue operation of the lake.

"You couldn't justify taking the taxpayer's money and operating the thing unless you have a concession and the thing will pay its way," Pond said. "It's possible, if available, that we could use some revenue sharing

Our World

How About Learning?

By ANN BROWN

Almost all colleges and universities reported a decrease in enrollment last year. The majority of exceptions were consistently found among private colleges, and church-related institutions.

All Southern Baptist schools increased enrollments last year — with Wayland College way out in front.

The administrators from the shrinking colleges should be able to profit from researching Wayland's phenomenal growth.

A college education is expensive. It costs years of the student's precious time, and thousands of dollars of somebody's money.

Perhaps a bachelor's degree is only designed to equip one to learn. But part of that equipment should be a general knowledge (and only truth is knowledge), a measure of expertise in at least one major field, and considerable social polish.

When parents send courteous, ambitious, patriotic high school graduates off to college, and they return sloppy, cynical, foul-mouthed anarchists turned on to drugs and addicted to alcohol, why would any parent in his right mind send another child back to such a place?

The human mind, like the body, is a product of that which goes into it. What can one expect of students whose required reading includes "Sexual Politics," a powerful and coherent attack on the family; "Soul on Ice," a vicious and obscene assault on the white race and American society; "Love Story," a foul protest against God, morality, and parents in general; and "The Black Arts," which rejects God and good, and elevates Satan and evil?

"The Family in Search of a Future" is required reading on at least 150 campuses across the nation. This book extols homosexual "marriage," sex outside of marriage, communal families, polygamy, and group marriage.

Cornell University Prof. Judith Long Laws, who teaches "The Social Psychology of Women" to 160 undergraduates, and a graduate seminar in "Feminine Identity," was quoted in Reader's Digest as saying the family is "not a viable institution. It puts a strain on people they can't bear. It isolates and impoverishes women."

The report from the 28th National Conference on Higher Education graphically illustrates the trend that has contributed to a decrease in college enrollments.

Among the featured speakers at the conference were Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, a proponent of transcendental meditation, and Alison Bernstein who rejoiced that the "new students" (radical revolutionaries) were "turned on to micro-economics instead of business technology . . . Marx instead of auto mechanics."

In one session, the teachers were entertained by the composer-poet-mimer, Michael Colgass. Stripped to a pair of mini briefs, he lay on the floor surrounded by the teachers sitting crosslegged. He told them how to relax and enjoy "art" as an experience.

Protected by the smoke screen of academic freedom, many college teachers have indulged in revolutionary experiments which exclude morality, God consciousness, patriotism, and even dignity and modesty.

A few professors have disrobed before their classes as "visual education." One Oklahoma teacher used nudity to demonstrate the proper way to relax from such tensions in life as "moral responsibility" and the "drag of making a living."

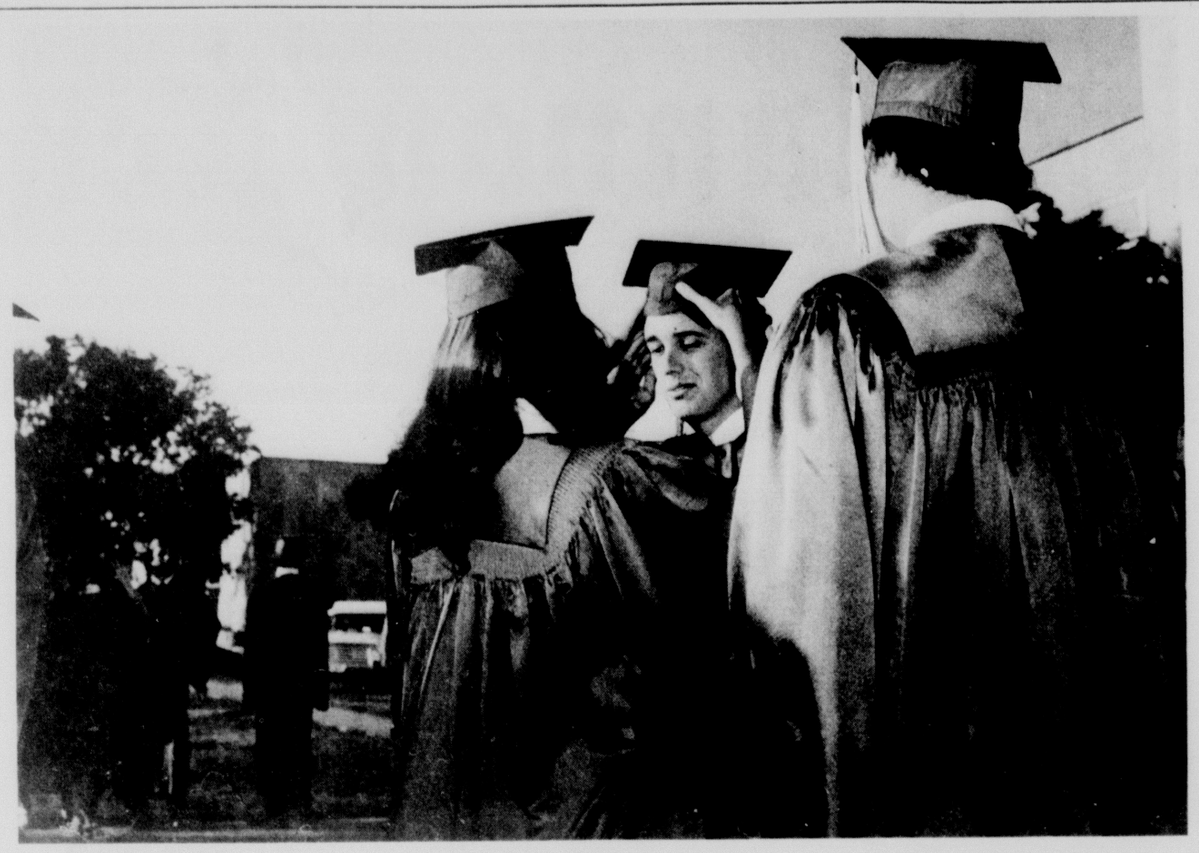
College courses which disparage the eternal verities in crude and obscene language may produce students with some kind of expertise, but what about knowledge, and polish?

If students fail to get what they pay for, why should they attend college?

American colleges have been the key to our nation's progress. And probably the majority of college professors are still scholars who are dedicated to the education of our youth.

As important as administrators are, the classroom teachers create the image of any institution. And qualified teachers are available.

If the radical revolutionaries were replaced with dignified educators, the ailing colleges would likely soon recover from their current malaise.



One graduate straightens the hat of another just before commencement exercises began Tuesday night at Buffalo Fieldhouse. More than 200 Canyon High School seniors donned cap and gown for the ceremonies to close out their public school educations.

Biologist Says

Fishing For Facts On Fish Is Their Line

Keeping the Panhandle's fishermen happy is the primary task of the four-man crew that occupies the nondescript, corrugated tin building located on a dirt road off Fourth Avenue, just past the watertower.

It's easy to miss if you're not looking, but an astute passerby might see the weather-beaten sign out front that reads "Texas Parks & Wildlife Dept. Inland Fisheries." The station is one of 12 in the state charged with the task of watching over, and giving human help to the Texas fish population.

Housed under the tin roof is the crew, one of 16 such crews in the state. It consists of biologists Steve Clarke and John Prentice, and technicians B.A. Bagwell and Wes Barfield. Their jurisdiction is over all the water bodies, including 12 lakes, in 33 counties in the Panhandle.

Clarke, a young man with a deep suntan, explained the duties of the crew.

"Mainly we conduct research studies on the fish population of the Panhandle, as well as actual management of the lakes, including Meredith and Green Belt. We determine what the fish population consists of, determine proper fish ratios and try to maintain them, adding some kinds of fish when needed."

Although the crew's work takes them outdoors much of the time, as their suntans seem to prove, much of their work goes on indoors, where they compile the findings of their various projects. These are published by the TPWD and become an invaluable library of piscatorial information for fisheries throughout the country.

The crux of their work is the maintenance of a proper natural balance of three kinds of fish—game fish, the kind sought after by Panhandle anglers; rough fish, including shad, bullheads and undesirable varieties, and forage fish, which provide the food for the game fish. When Nature doesn't maintain a proper equilibrium—if, for instance, 80 per cent of a lake's fish population consists of rough fish—then the fishery crew steps in.

"Sometimes we have to completely eradicate an entire fish population and start over when this happens," says Clarke.

"Starting over" can mean the "chemical renovation" of a water body—such as the ones conducted last summer at Perryton's Lake Fryer and Dalhart's Rita Blanca.

Using the chemical rotenone, a poison affecting the gills, and thus the respiratory tract of fishes, the crew destroyed the existing fish populations of these lakes, and ordered up a new, more favorable one. Since rotenone does not affect the edibility of the fish, the public was invited to attend the renovation and pick up the usable fish.

Sometimes, attempts to introduce new fish to Panhandle waters don't work. Clarke says that attempts to stock area lakes with northern pike will no longer be made. In 1967, the fishery threw some 150,000 of this exotic northern variety into Green Belt Lake. The fish, imported from Kansas, reproduced until 1968, and after that ceased to multiply.

"We're not sure why they're not spawning," Clarke says. "But one of our theories is that in their natural setting, the spawning season coincides with higher water levels brought on by melting ice. Here, it comes in a period of low water-levels, and there is some evidence that this affects their spawning activities."

Next spring, the crew plans to start a new wall-eyed bass population in Green Belt Lake to see if the bass will be able to control the lake's white crappie population, which has been stunted due to over population.

In 1966-67, the crew stocked Meredith with wall-eye and they've been thriving ever since. Clarke estimates the spawning population alone of wall-eye at 16,000, and says that about one-third of the lake's fish are of wall-eye variety.

The crew will also be determining the fish situation at the new MacKenzie Reservoir on Tule Creek, scheduled to open in December, 1974.

In addition to their research and management activities, the crew also works with the Texas Water Quality Board in investigation of all fish deaths believed to have been killed by pollution, either organic (waste, sewage) or through petroleum spills.

Clarke says there has been little incidence of pollution through petroleum spill or by city sewer systems. He cites Buffalo Lake as an example of organic pollution contributing to the death of whole fish populations.

A proper balance of the three varieties of fish—game, forage and rough—is vital, Clarke says. In the case of wall-eyed bass, for instance, if left in hatcheries for over three weeks without a proper ratio of forage fish, they begin eating each other.

"Our job mostly is to see that the fishermen around here have good fishing," Clarke explains. "My self? I do some fishing—but I'm not a fanatic."

Initial Bore Hole Rules Aired

A preliminary set of requirements to help regulate the drilling of bore holes for sewage disposal have been prepared by Dr. Robert Winn, West Texas State University hydrologist.

The preliminary rules have not yet been presented Randall County commissioners, who suggested they be drawn up by Winn in conjunction with representatives of area drilling firms.

The commissioners, after holding two meetings concerning the dangers of bore hole drilling in the county, particularly in mobile home parks, have not yet decided what their course of action will be in regulating the drilling of the holes.

"In an effort to establish general similarities in construction and to protect both the users and the environment, the following statements are offered," the preliminary regulations say.

The recommendations are:

*That no bore hole be drilled less than 100 feet horizontally from an existing water supply well. Location of drill sites should be made with careful appraisal of the surface conditions. Bore holes should be down slope from water wells. Bore holes should not be in topographic lows where surface water collection would be an associated problem.

*That no bore hole be drilled into the subsurface when the base of the drilling is less than 100 feet from the top of the water table.

*That the cover to the bore hole be placed so there is a minimum of 16 inches of surface material as topping.

*That inlet and outlet trenches with piping be spotted with concrete at the confluence with the bore hole wall to assure maximum stability, prevent caving, wasting and deterioration of the disposal area.

*That wherever possible, tandem bore hole construction be pursued. This provides for a modified septic tank and will be more efficient in waste disposal.

Winn's proposals suggest that due to rapid increase of population near urban centers in the county, some measure of regulation is inevitable.

He suggests some form of record keeping, such as a permit, with the location, owner and depth recorded, be required.

One approach, he says, is to furnish drilling companies with a standard form with the responsibility for proper drilling locations remaining with the driller who would be subject to a penalty.

Poff's Scabies Bill Killed

The Texas Animal Health Commission killed a bill introduced in the Texas House which would have exempted cattle feedyards from the scabies dipping requirements, Rep. Bryan Poff charged Tuesday.

Poff, who was scheduled to return to Amarillo from Austin Wednesday told The News his bill to exempt feedyards from the animal health commission's scabies regulations met with no success in the Senate after passage in the House.

"The animal health commission killed it," Poff said. "They lobbied against it and I'm not sure that's exactly cricket."

Poff said the commission lobbied against his bill primarily due to the clause which would exempt feedyards from the scabies treatment requirement as long as the cattle were destined for slaughter.

The bill also included a clause which would have given cattlemen a 30-day period during which they could treat their cattle for scabies.

"It's real funny," Poff said, "but they (the animal health commission) agreed to do what this bill says and put it in their minutes but they didn't want it on the lawbooks."

Poff said the commission agreed to exempt feedyards from the scabies rules.

"Their position was that if it was on the books, then other states would think they don't have any power and are run by the legislature," Poff said. "That's what (Dr. H. Q.) Sibley told me."

Even though Poff's bill was killed in the Senate, a measure by Rep. Dean Cobb passed both houses and awaits gubernatorial okay.

Cobb's bill, Poff said, probably encompasses the portion of Poff's bill about the 30-day waiting period for treatment.

The bill, which has been hailed as a boon to area cattlemen, provides that spraying for scabies can be used in place of dipping.

Poff headed a House interim committee studying the scabies treatment problem last fall and his and Cobb's legislation resulted from public hearings held throughout the state.

Poff and Cobb backed the spraying bill due to the illness and death losses recounted to them by area cattlemen who were required to dip cattle during cold winter months.

Vet Lab Bill To Gov.

A bill to create a large animal diagnostic clinic in either Potter or Randall counties was sent to Gov. Dolph Briscoe for signature Monday as the Texas legislature wound up its final day of this session.

Rep. Bryan Poff, who initially introduced the bill in the House, said Tuesday the bill provides for construction of a $950,000 laboratory facility in Potter or Randall County.

Originally, Poff's bill had said the lab would be established on the campus of West Texas State University. That version of the bill, in fact, passed through the Texas House.

Opposition was met, however, in the Senate when Sen. Max Sherman carried the bill forward.

Primary opposition came from a senator representing Bryan. He contended, according to Sherman, that the bill should be amended to allow establishment of the laboratory in any county in the High Plains.

As a compromise, Sherman amended the bill to allow establishment in either Potter or Randall County.

When the bill was returned to the House, Poff asked that the bill be reworded.

A conference committee had two meetings on the bill, Poff said, and heavy opposition on the committee itself resulted in final passage of the bill in its present form.

The laboratory will be under the direction of the Texas A&M board of regents.

Under Poff's bill it was to have been a joint effort of WTSU and A&M.

Sen. Sherman has said he has written the A&M regents urging them to select the WTSU campus as site for the lab, which will be useful to area cattle feeders particularly.

With 15 employees, the lab is designed to provide diagnostic services primarily for the area cattle industry.

Summer Term Begins Mon.

Registration for the first summer session at West Texas State University will be from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday in the Activities Center.

Orientation and counseling for beginning freshmen begins at 8:30 a.m. in room 101 of University Complex South.

Class instruction begins Tuesday.

Course offerings for the first session include several new courses.

The Department of Mathematics will offer Math 491, basic mathematics, for students who wish to improve their scores on the mathematics portion of the Graduate Record Examination.

A workshop in career education for elementary and secondary school teachers, Industrial Education 495-2, will expose the teacher to the basic job clusters and activities typical of employees in the career areas.

Public relations and publicity will be offered by the journalism department. Journalism 350 will cover the study of public relations principles, publics, attitudes and activities and development of public relations programs for institutions, business, industry and organizations.

Eastern Stars To Hold Open Installation

By MARY NEAL HENRY

YOU ARE CORDIALLY invited to an open installation of the Happy Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star on Friday evening, June 1st, at 8 p.m. at the Masonic Hall in Happy. Mrs. Evelyn Shipman will be installed Worthy Matron. Viola Buchanan is the retiring Worthy Matron. Come and share the evening with us!

THE BAPTISTS BEGAN Vacation Bible School with 99 this week. This is a good start. It will be good to hear the final enrollment count. Commencement will be Friday morning and will be followed by hot dogs in the park.

THE METHODIST CHURCH will host their Vacation Bible School next week, June 4 throutn 8th. It will be held from 8:45 until 11:30 every morning.

THE CHURCH OF Christ Vacation Bible School will be June 11 through 15, from 9 to 11 every morning. They will run that traditional GOSPEL CHARIOT to Bible School.

MRS. LE MAR Elliott, nee Kay Spear, was honored with a bridal shower on Saturday morning at Mrs. Morlan McManigal's home in Happy. Kate, Kay, Fern and Mrs. Dwight Elliott, mother of the groom from Amarillo, received guests. They wore corsages of yellow and white spring flowers. Guests were registered, served and shown the gifts by Kay's classmates. Only eleven girls are on that classroll and ten of them were able to attend. Guests were served orange juice, fresh strawberries, rolls and coffee.

A LIST OF hostesses was unavailable at this printing, but there were several and many friends dropped by to see the display of gifts and wish the young bride happiness. Kay and Le Mar will be at home in Amarillo. Le Mar will graduate from WTSU at the end of the summer. Fern Spear treated Kay and her friends to a luncheon at noon at Al's restaurant.

RICK AND FERN Spear will be traveling to Richardson this weekend to take Casey home. Casey has been visiting in Happy for several weeks now. He is going home to help his mom take care of that new baby brother, Raymond Albert, who was born May 5. Ray weighed 7 pounds. Casey and Ray belong to Nina and Tom Gutheinz.

HAPPY JAYCEE-ETTES invite you to a tea on Saturday, June 2, from 3 to 5 in the afternoon. It will be held in the lovely Lloyd Venhaus home, one-half mile south of the Baptist Church in Happy. Happy Jaycee-Ettes will honor their Outstanding President of Texas, Division I, Sara Tirey, and their Outstanding Jaycee-Ette of Texas, Division I, Skip Simons. Since this is their tenth year of organization, they also plan to honor all past presidents and past outstanding Jaycee-Ettes. They invite you to come and share their celebration, and view all the scrapbooks compiled since their having been chartered. Happy Jaycee-Ettes were chartered by Canyon Jaycee-Ettes.

ALICE WOMACK MIDDLETON is now a cover girl. Her picture can be seen on the cover of the Coop Leader. It was taken when she and Ronnie accompanied a group of young people skiing last winter. She is also pictured in a group picture inside the magazine. Alice is a former Lions Queen of Happy and won the Miss Congeniality title at the District Contest that year. She is also a former Miss Swisher County.

WAYSIDE MEMORIAL DAY observance was attended by a very large crowd this year. Many drove out before Sunday. An ample crew were on hand to clean up the cemetery and church grounds and mow all the grass.

LYLE ROBINSON WAS the speaker for the afternoon. He was introduced by John Culwell, retiring president. Vigo Park was responsible for this year's program (Wayside and Vigo Park present the programs on alternate years).

NEW OFFICERS ARE president, Henry Hamblen; vice president, Willy Modisette; and secretary-treasurer, Bernice Hamblen. If anyone knows how many years that Wayside has been observing Memorial Day, please write Henry Hamblen, Wayside, Tex. 79098. Information, so far, tells us that Wayside has been observing Memorial Day for over 70 years and has not missed a single year.

MR. AND MRS. George Hancock and their daughter, Judy and her family, of Pampa attended Memorial Services at Wayside. Others included Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Helms of Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. Odell James of Pea Ridge, Ark. (during weekend, but not Sunday), the M.L. McGehees of Pierceville, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. G.R. McNeill of Wichita Falls, Lorene Abbott of Golden, Colo., Sara Beth and Jack Loudder and all their family, Danny Mack Gillam of Amarillo, and Kate Folk of Canyon.

LILLIE WESLEY, CHARLES Wesley, Charlene and Jerry Dustman and their Paula, and Ronnie and Thena and their Theron and Lance Wesley were together on Saturday and visited the Wayside Cemetery during the day.

MRS. T. J. (Vivian) Meyer, Lillie Wesley's sister, has had a goiter removed at St. Anthony's. The surgery was last Friday and Vivian is reported doing well.

MR. AND MRS. M.L. McGehee II have moved into the Fannie Stevens' home on the Wayside highway.

GRACE SCHAEFFER HAS been moved from Neblett Hospital to La Casa Rest Home in Canyon. Her condition is improved.

RUBE AND THELMA Wesley from Abernathy visited Pauline and Woodrow Wesley this week.

MRS. VIRGIL TOLES has had eye surgery in High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo.

CLYDE HANCOCK TOOK his dad, Hap, to Temple to the clinic last week. They are home now.

MR. AND MRS. Dub Oler and their grandsons, Donnie and Jay, traveled to South Texas to see the Thurman Olers. They left the morning after school was out.

O. H. RAHLFS was hospitalized from Thursday to Saturday. O.H. is home now, but still consulting his doctor.

NATHAN HARVEY WAS hospitalized with a kidney stone last week. Nathan is back at work in the field.

JAN, FREDDA AND Dale Whitlow and Dorothy Magness traveled to Commerce last Friday to the graduation exercises of Sue Jane (Ferguson) Davis' oldest, Marcey Jan. They attended graduation exercises in Dimmitt on Monday evening. Ann and Weldon's Karen graduated from Dimmitt. Karen plans to attend WTSU this fall.

HENRY AND CATHY Knox and their George, Paul and "Little" Henry of Grantsville, Utah, are here with Margaret Knox for about ten days. They were in the church service on Sunday morning. Cathy's mother, Mrs. Judy Crites of Waco and aunt, Willie Mae Ponykl also of Waco, were in Happy visiting their children and grandchildren. Lucille and Scott Robinson of Canyon spent Sunday afternoon with the family and were in Happy again on Tuesday for lunch with Margaret.

NADENE DAVIS OF Amarillo visited with Cathy Knox and all her family on Wednesday. Nadene had been George's babysitter since he was only three weeks old.

GLADYS NULL RETURNED Saturday after several weeks visit in Sonora with Effie and Bill Harle and the grandsons.

NOVALENE AND JOHN Toles and their Hol traveled to Austin over the weekend to attend the graduation exercises at the University of Texas. Cindy finished college at the close of the fall term, but participated in this — the only graduation exercise. Cindy has been employed by a lawyer in Austin and plans to continue her education.

JEANNE JOHNSON ENTERTAINED her Acteens with a slumber party in her home on the Tuesday that school was out. Those enjoying the party were Gennie Jackson, Cari Greenfield, Teri Patching, Shelley Peterson, Shann McCarley, and Kathy Flowers. Roxie and Jay Wade especially enjoyed it, too.

DOTTIE AND DICK Foster, Joy and Norman Freeman and Kaye and Vincent Venhaus attended the Friona Jaycee Installation on Saturday evening.

THE 4-H SWISHER County Horse Show was held in Happy on Friday evening at the Happy Rodeo Arena. The judge was Owen Barnes of Dimmitt. Sherry Starkey won 2nd in showmanship, 1st in poles, 3rd in barrels and showed her horse to 4th place in registered geldings, 5 years and over. Valerie Tipps won 2nd in barrels (she was beaten two-tenths of a second by Wade Littlefield) and showed Meg, her mare, to 2nd in grade mares.

EDDIE JOE PEARSON won 4th in showmanship and showed his horse to 2nd place in grade geldings, 5 and over; won 2nd in poles and 4th in barrels. Chris Pearson won 6th in showmanship and showed his horse to 5th in grade geldings, 5 and over, and won 1st in reining. Angelique Henry showed Casey to 6th place in grade geldings and won 7th in poles. (She is too young to go to district, but they allow them to participate).

NEAL ODOM WON 1st with his grade gelding, 4 years and under, and won 11th place of 23 entries in Western Pleasure; Guy Walt Via won 7th in Western Pleasure and 2nd in grade geldings, 4 and under; Kyle Odom placed 11th with his grade gelding, 5 and over. Kevin Odom and Jay McCarley also entered the horse show. Some of those classes were most competitive.

BOB COLE WON 10th with his grade gelding, 5 years and over.

PING CRAWFORD ANNOUNCED the 4-H Horse Show. He kept things moving and everyone informed about the events as they were scheduled with his steady chatter. Ping has never experienced a speechless occasion. I'm teasing him. Ping is an excellent MC.

I LOST THE necklace that Tom gave me for Christmas at the 4-H Horse Show on Friday evening or I may have lost it in or about the Masonic Hall. I noticed the minute I walked in the back door at home that it was missing. I'm still praying for its return. It is also valuable because Tom picked it out for me.

RHONDA FELLERS WAS installed Worthy Advisor of Happy Rainbow Assembly in an Open Installation Service on Saturday evening at the Masonic Hall. Yellow and light green candles and flowers decorated the hall. The serving table was covered with a white cloth and centered with yellow roses flanked by light green tapers in silver candle holders. Yellow cakes, mixed nuts and green sherbet punch were served to about 65 guests who attended.

RHONDA'S PLAQUE IN green and yellow depicted a rainbow of "FRIENDSHIP" and clusters of yellow roses. It also held her name, term and her symbol, clasped hands.

RUTH SIMS WAS installing officer for the evening. Others were installing marshal, Barbara Dowd; installing chaplain, Sheri Henry; installing recorder, Mary Ann Sims; and installing pianist, Sandy Railsback. Officers installed for the ensuing term were: Worthy Advisor, Rhonda Fellers; Worthy Associate Advisor, Beverly Dowd; Charity, Connie Hand; Hope, Cathy Parker; Faith, Linda Railsback; Drill Leader, Shawn Walters; Chaplain, Becky Stubblefield; Love, Denise Cope; Religion, Lissa Foster; Nature, Pam Andrews; Immortality, Diane Johnson; Fidelity, Sandy Railsback; Patriotism, Jan Whitlow, and Service, Brenda Parker; Confidential Observer, Nancy Woods; Outer Observer, Nancy White; Choir Director, Karen Sims; Musician, Barbara Dowd; and Choir, Sheri Henry, Brenda Railsback, Knoxie LeBeau, Paula and Shannon Heil, Becky Via, Kim Sims, Kim McCaslin, Shirley Penn and Debra Jackson. Officers Recorder, Mary Ann Sims and treasurer, Linda Briscoe were installed in January for one year.

RHONDA INTRODUCED HER parents, Gay and Jim Fellers, and thanked them for many things, but for one thing in particular, the view they had taught her about life: that most obstacles in the pathway of life are put there by oneself. Rhonda introduced her brother, Mike, and sister, Laura; her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Logan Sanders. Rhonda dedicated her term to me, one of my highest honors. I feel most humble and honored.

THE ADVISORY BOARD served refreshments.

ANNIE LEMMONS AND Phyllis Bradley spent the night with us on Saturday. Bert Lemmons has been in Happy for a week repainting and cleaning their home because Bert and Annie are moving back to Happy on Sunday. Annie and Phil drove down to see him and spent the night with me. I really enjoyed their visit. Annie hadn't seen my home. On Sunday, Annie, Bert and Phil ate Sunday dinner with us. Then Annie and Phil returned to Gruver.

SHERI, ANGELIQUE AND I attended the recital of Carolyn Moudy and Laura Fellers on Sunday afternoon in Vivian Wesley Auditorium. Mrs. Alice Corts Crocker presented Carolyn and Laura in a piano recital on Sunday afternoon at 3. It was very good and a large crowd attended.

DEBBI PARKER AND Andy Payne handed out programs preceding the recital. Janet Moudy and Rhonda Fellers served punch and cookies at a reception in the foyer after the recital.

MR. AND MRS. Grant Stubblefield, Kathy Moudy's parents from Tullahoma, Tenn., visited in Happy with the Alvin Moudys and attended the recital. Kathy's brother, Jimmy Stubblefield, also visited with them. They left on Wednesday to return to Tennessee for Jimmy's son's graduation exercises.

FROM THE RECITAL, Sheri, Angelique and I traveled to Panhandle to visit Frances and Red Matthews and attend my nephew Dean's baccalaureate. Keith Wiseman, the Methodist Minister of Panhandle, delivered their address and he was really good. He played the tape of their life for them (in his own words) and gave them suggestions for life. He spoke on their level, in their terms, and he was good. Oma Hayes and Debbie Matthews and Cindy Ward of Amarillo were also there. We got to Frances' just in time for supper.

OLIN YOUNG, 1971 Champion Steer Roper, won the Tulia Memorial Day Steer Roping. John Miller won 2nd, Randy Burchett won 3rd and Clark McIntyre won 4th. Shi Hurst of Happy won a 2nd in the third go-round. I couldn't get Judy Thompson on the telephone.

OMA HAYES CAME to see me on Monday. It may have been a holiday for someone, but we worked. Lots of weeds disappeared around here and we replanted the part of the garden that hadn't come up. If it wasn't up in six weeks, I decided to give up on it. (Mark Nichols has the best advice about gardens, "Have a neighbor with a good garden.") Monday evening J.J. Lane joined us for supper.

THE TRI-STATE High School Rodeo Finals are this weekend in Amarillo. The Happy girls team is 7th with 51 points. The boys team is 12th with 53½ points. Sherry Starkey will be competing in barrel racing and pole bending, Becky Via will be breakaway roping, Ken Henry will be competing in bareback bronc riding; Wendy Sims will be competing in Chute dogging and team roping and Kevin Donnell will be competing in team roping. I wish these kids lots of luck this weekend!

KIPPA MCFARLAND LEAVES next week to attend the University of Hawaii for the summer. She'll be taking Latin and math. Kippa will return and attend Tech in the fall. She has been accepted by Tech as a pre-law major.

REMEMBER WHEN PLANNING your menu for FATHER'S DAY, that it is BEEF for Father's Day. You'll be hearing more from the Happy Cow-Belles.

Call me, 764-2158.

See ya,
Mary Neal

Committee Named For History Group

Irwin Ochsner, Amarillo attorney, has been named president of the executive committee of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society.

Ochsner was recently elected to head the society.

Jay Taylor will be first vice president of the executive committee and Charles Woodburn will be second vice president.

Grady Hazelwood and Virgil Patterson were named to serve three-year terms on the committee.

Other members are James Witherspoon of Hereford, Joe Pool of Amarillo, Clarence E. Thompson of Canyon and Levi Cole of Canyon.

First meeting for the committee will be June 14.

Highland Club Installs Officers

New officers of the Highland Home Demonstration Club were recently installed at a "Come As You Are" breakfast attended by eight club members.

Newly elected officers included president, Mrs. Bernard Grabber; vice president, Mrs. Melvin McClure; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Siegfried Bolte; council delegate, Mrs. Boyd Elliott.

The breakfast and a regular business meeting which followed were held in the home of Mrs. Elliott. Mrs. McClure hostessed the event.

In addition, members made tentative plans for serving food at a public auction sale as a club money raising project. Plans will be finalized at a later date.

Mrs. James Janssen was presiding officer and Mrs. Jones Hales gave details of a recent council meeting.

A family picnic has been scheduled for club members on June 3. Also, a special meeting has been set for July 25th at 1:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Grabber. The next regular meeting will be held in September.

Members attending the breakfast included Mrs. Bolte, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Grabber, Mrs. Hales, Mrs. Clarence Howard, Mrs. Janssen, Mrs. McClure and Mrs. Ervin Podzemny.

Eddie Clement (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Clement; and Terry Mayfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy L. Mayfield, are upside down with happiness this week, like most of their schoolmates who are looking forward to three months of summer fun. Both boys completed their work at Rex Reeves Elementary School this week and will begin seventh grade at Canyon Junior High in the fall.

Palo Duro Services To Begin Sunday

The First Baptist Church of Canyon will again sponsor a non-denominational mission in Palo Duro Canyon with the first services scheduled to begin this Sunday.

Ministers and laymen from the various churches in the area are scheduled to preach at the mission, which will be conducted at 11 a.m. each Sunday in the Cottonwood Grove at Water-crossing No. 1 in the canyon.

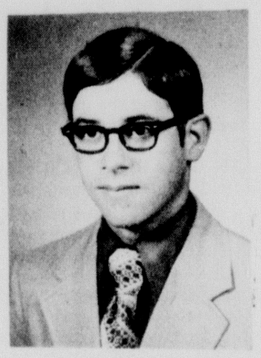
Services will be conducted throughout the summer months, a spokesman said.

Interested persons are asked to bring their musical instruments and participate in the Mission's musical services.

Mission Director J.C. Newton, well-known cowboy lay-preacher, will be among the scheduled speakers for Sunday's services.

Last year the Mission drew visitors representing 14 different states and several different denominations.

Going somewhere? Or been? The Canyon News wants to know about it—an so do its readers.



Charles Douglas Rittenberry, Jr. is another senior at Canyon High School who graduated Tuesday night during commencement.

Local Student To Attend Camp

Toye Ann Stubblefield of Canyon Junior High School has been accepted in the Ranger Junior College Basketball Camp June 10-15.

Miss Stubblefield joins several other local girls in the camp. One of the camp's coaches will be Canyon High School coach Bob Schneider.

Now A Prayer For Parents

By TROYCE MULHERIN

GREETINGS:

WHAT WITH SCHOOL being out and what with all the little darlings being home all day eating and playing and bickering, etc., the following item may prove useful to mother:

"A Parent's Prayer"

"O Heavenly Father, make me a better parent. Teach me to understand my children, to listen patiently to what they have to say, and to answer all their questions kindly. Keep me from interrupting them or contradicting them. Make me as courteous to them as I would have them be to me. Forbid that I should ever laugh at their mistakes, or resort to shame or ridicule when they displease me. May I never punish them for my own selfish satisfaction or to show my power.

"Let me not tempt my child to lie or steal. And guide me hour by hour that I may demonstrate by all I say and do that honesty produces happiness.

"Reduce, I pray, the meanness in me. And, when I am out of sorts, help me, O Lord, to hold my tongue.

"May I ever be mindful that my children are children, and I should not expect of them the judgment of adults.

"Let me not rob them of the opportunity to wait on themselves and to make decisions.

"Bless me with the bigness to grant them all their reasonable requests, and the courage to deny them privileges I know will do them harm.

"Make me fair and just and kind. And fit me, O Lord, to be loved and respected and imitated by my children. Amen."

THE ABOVE WAS given to each of the mothers of pre-school children at a recent meeting at the school. We may all, pre-school mother or not, find ample opportunity to refer to this prayer during these long, long summer days.

KENNY NAGUNST CELEBRATED his tenth birthday on the 26th. Friends joining in on the party-game fun included Barbara Campsey, Crystal Ballard, Kevin Carroll, Leslie Lichte and the Don Blake youngsters. Kenny's currently on a motorcycle jag, and his mommy thoughtfully had a small-type one decorating his birthday cake. Kenny is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nagunst.

TANYA AND RONNIE Holt have returned from a fun vacation to Toledo Bend, which is on the Texas-Louisiana border. They dropped the youngsters off in Tyler to spend a few days being properly spoiled by their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Brady Swinney. Then, Ronnie and Tanya and their camper moved on to Toledo Bend for several days of fishing, which was good. The fishing, that is.

SURPRISE! SURPRISE! SURPRISE! These were the words that greeted Tanya Riley at the Lake Tanglewood home of Tonya Hunter. Tonya, Becky Wallace and Mark Jackson had the pleasure of hosting a "Sweet Sixteen" birthday party for Tanya Riley last weekend. Tanya is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Riley, and was pleasurably surprised by her friends on this occasion. Many more happies to you, young lady!

BILL HARP AND his lady had a grand time in Las Vegas recently. About 24 area people were treated to a couple of days in "another world," otherwise known as Vegas, land of the sore right arm. (From pulling the lever, get it?). The Harps passed up this little game, but did treat themselves to a Paris production being shown at the Stardust. Ernestine said the costuming and stage settings were really impressive. They also enjoyed a few other shows while there, and eyeballed some rather interesting-looking golf courses. But, since they had not brought their clubs along, they moved on. Visiting some casinos, where the Harps mostly watched the people. Ernestine said there were no windows or clocks in the casinos. Wonder why. They drooled over, but didn't get to touch, a million dollars, same being composed of ten thousand denomination bills, and same being enclosed under glass at the Diamond Horseshoe.

BACK HOME TO put the finishing touches to wedding preparations. Daughter Dena served as flower girl, and daughter Diane served as one of the bride's attendants for son Duane's wedding. The ceremony was held Friday, May 25 at the Polk Street Methodist Church. The lovely bride, formerly Miss Anita White, is the daughter of James and Winona White, and was also attended by her sister, Amy. All the ladies in the wedding party wore festive long dresses in wedding colors of blue, pink and orchid gingham. The mother of the bride, Winona, wore a floor-length, floral design gown of magenta and turquoise. And, the mother of the groom, Ernestine, wore a long, pink flowered gown.

OUT OF TOWN guests included Bill's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Harp from Pueblo, Colo., who were two of the approximately 325 people attending the wedding and reception. The reception was held in the social hall of the church. The white wedding cake was beautifully decorated with fresh flowers.

MR. AND MRS. Duane Harp traveled to the Dallas-Fort Worth area before returning to Amarillo, where Anita is employed at the Charlie White Meat Co., and the groom is working at First Supply during the summer months. They plan on attending West Texas State University next fall. Very best of wishes to this young couple for their happiness and well-being.

TERRI TRUE, DAUGHTER of Betty and Dan, celebrated her fifteenth birthday on the 24th. Many happies to this lovely lass!

MICHAEL ARNETT RECEIVED birthday wishes in the shape of a Honda cycle. Michael, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arland Arnett, became twelve on the 22nd.

THE JOHN DOZIERS, J. L. Rileys, Seed Calls and Ronnie Holts, and respective younguns, spent last weekend boating, sunbathing and eating at Conchas Lake. The friendly companionship compensated for the unfruitful fishing.

A HAPPY ELEVENTH birthday to Regeania Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Turner. Regeania enjoyed two parties. One being a Saturday skating party with her friends, and another being a family-type party with cake and ice cream on the 23rd — her day. Many more happies to you, Regeania!

YOUNG MR. BUFKIN, Todd, that is, became seven years old on Monday, the 28th. About 24 of his friends and buddies surprised him with a picnic at Thompson Park. Todd knew they were going to the park to eat and then ride the rides at Wonderland. What he didn't know (until it came time to share his chocolate cake) was that the picnic was in his honor! Would you believe that that many people could keep a secret? Well, they can, and they did. Including his daddy, Guy, and his sister, Traci. Many happies to this fine young man.

SPEAKING OF WONDERLAND — it was great. A whole slew of Gene Howe people came to ride the rides, eat cotton candy, and go home feeling, in some cases, somewhat queasy. Thank goodness the weather cooperated, though a little nippy (for bench sitters, that is). This was a grand way to bring the school year to a close. Everyone had a fine time. Those who bought tickets at the school and didn't get to use same have until the tenth of June to spend 'em at the park.

DARLENE CAMPBELL RETURNED last week from a Texas Hospital Auxiliary state convention held in Houston. The Auxilians from Amarillo headquartered at the Sheraton-Hilton. Darlene is Historian for the Northwest Texas Hospital Auxiliary, and entered her scrapbook jor judging. She reported that the meetings were informative and interesting, and she is anxious to share what she learned with her sister volunteers. These ladies give many, many hours of service to their community. A stay in the hospital is not much to get overly excited about, but just think what it would be like without the helpful, smiling Auxilians there.

SPEAKING OF HOSPITALS, Brenda Lawless has spent some days in one in Canyon. Aw right, now, lovely lady, get yourself well. Enough is enough, and we want that pretty smile at home.

THE LONG WEEKEND found the Bob Ingrams motoring to Roswell for the horse races; the George Bells visiting in Clovis, and lots and lots of other Gene Howe people visiting area recreation sites.

REGARDLESS OF WHAT she told you, Darlyne does not, nor does anyone else, use vanilla extract for shampooing purposes.

THANKS FOR THE use of the hall.

Day Camp teachers gathered at First United Methodist Church on Thursday to plan the details of activities set for sixth graders in Palo Duro Canyon, June 11-15, as part of Vacation Church School. They are, left to right, seated, Mrs. Carroll Wilson, Mrs. Eugene Bonds, Mrs. Kelvin Allen, and Mrs. Bruce Currie. Standing are Mrs. Don Sheets and Mrs. Ralph Cole.

6th Grade Day Camp Planned

A Day Camp set in Palo Duro Canyon, designed to provide sixth graders with growing and sharing experiences in the outdoors, will be held for the first time this year, June 11-15 as part of ecumenical Vacation Church School.

Plans call for the children to meet daily at First Presbyterian Church where they will be transported by private cars to the campsite in the Canyon. From there on, they will be busy preparing their own meals, engaging in outdoor crafts, hiking, and planning study and worship programs.

Special events will include a family night weiner roast on June 13, a sunrise breakfast on Friday morning, June 15, and a geological tour of the Canyon by Dr. James Underwood, associate professor of geology at West Texas State University. Arrangements are being made also for the Kwahadi Indian Dancers, a Boy Scout group, to perform for the campers.

Registration for children who have just completed sixth grade may be made at Sunday School at any of the five churches participating in ecumenical church school — St. Ann's Catholic, St. George's Episcopal, First Christian, First Presbyterian, and First United Methodist Church. Interested parents may also call 655-3540 to arrange registration. Deadline is June 4 and the fee is $1.00.

Times of departure from and return to the First Presbyterian Church have been set at 9 a.m.-3 p.m., on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday; 3 p.m.- 9 p.m., on Wednesday; and 7 a.m.-2 p.m. on Friday.

Youngsters are asked to wear or bring long pants, hiking shoes, and a light wrap or sweatshirt. They should also bring an unbreakable plate, silver, and a cup.

Teachers for the Vacation Church School Day Camp will be Mrs. Carroll Wilson, Mrs. Ralph Cole, Mrs. Bruce Currie, Mrs. Eugene Bonds, Mrs. Joel Oliver, Mrs. Kelvin Allen, Mrs. Don Sheets, and Mrs. Bob Ratliff.

Services Held For Man Killed In Accident In County

Joseph Triplett

A former Canyon man, Joseph Michel Triplett, 29, died early Monday as the result of a one-car crash east of the city at the Pullman Road-Farm Road 1151 intersection.

Triplett was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace W. W. Hancock about 1:55 a.m. Monday.

Highway Patrolman Ron Boyter said Triplett's vehicle was southbound on Pullman Road when it careened into a concrete island at the intersection and subsequently flipped three times throwing its passenger from the vehicle.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the First Baptist Church in Claude with Paul Snred, minister of education at the Central Church of Christ in Amarillo, officiating. Burial was in Llano Cemetery by LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Canyon.

Pallbearers were Gary Fletcher, Ricky Barnett, Larry Ripple, Don Rutherford, Steve Hill and Harry Wood.

Mr. Triplett was born Aug. 4, 1943 in Amarillo. He was a graduate of Canyon High School and attended West Texas State University and Texas Tech.

He married Ina Messenger on Dec. 20, 1964, at Clayton, N.M. He was a farmer-stockman.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Trampas Terrill of the home; a daughter, Cenee Dawn of the home; parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Triplett of 24 Hunsley Hills Blvd. in Canyon; a brother, Lloyd Murell Triplett of Claude; a sister, Mrs. Sharon Lynn Dalrymple of Austin; and a grandmother, Mrs. Lida Barnett of Claude.

Death Takes Mrs. Moore

Mrs. Minnie L. Moore, 81, of Canyon died Sunday night at Neblett Memorial Hospital here.

Funeral services were held Tuesday in Ballinger with burial in Evergreen Cemetery there.

Mrs. Moore had been a patient at LaCasa Canyon Convalescent Home here since November. She was a former Amarillo resident and a Baptist.

Survivors include daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Butler of Fort Worth and Mrs. Johnnie Legg of Ballinger; five grandchildren, including Steve Butler of 1101 Creekmere in Canyon; and one great-grandchild.

Local arrangements were by LaGrone Funeral Chapel.

Umbarger News

By REBA RAEF

AT THE TIME of this writing, Tuesday morning, we have over 500 names on our petition to keep Buffalo Lake open as a recreational center. People from Amarillo, Dalhart, Dimmitt, Lubbock, Wildorado, Panhandle, Washburn, Dallas, Muleshoe, Springlake, Happy, Lockney, Shallowater, Vernon, Dumas, Hart, Sunset, Friona, Fieldton, Irving, Farwell and Littlefield in Texas, and Guymon, Oklahoma and Clovis, New Mexico came by and signed our petition. We will send the petitions on to Bob Price, but we still have some in the Fishermans Supply, Umbarger Farm Supply, Donnell Garage and Umbarger Grocery, so, if you haven't signed yet, please feel free to come on and sign up.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 27, Mrs. Don Dolle presented the children of Bernard and Barbara Hartman in a piano recital in the Hartman home. Appearing on the program were Karen, Debra, Linda, Donna and David Hartman. Miss Mary Raef, of Amarillo was a guest soloist. Guests for the recital were Mrs. Laura Hartman, Kevin Raef, Mr. and Marion Hicks and boys, Mrs. Bert Wilhelm, Judy, Joyce and Janet, Juanita Hartman and Mr. and Mrs. Lewie Raef, from Umbarger; Celeste, Cheryl and Marlo Hartman, from Nazareth; Tom Raef, from Clovis, New Mexico; the Misses Kathy Goodin, Carolyn Cloninger, Mike and Margaret Browder from Amarillo; Mrs. Annie Krenek, from West, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Ron Kershen and boys and Mr. and Mrs. Don Dolle and children, from Canyon. At the close of the program, Mrs. Dolle was presented with a gift from the Hartman children. Refreshments were served and the group sang "Happy birthday" to Judy Wilhelm.

A1C CHARLEY STOCKER left Wednesday, after spending a week visiting his parents, the E.A. Stockers. Charley is stationed at Ft. Meade, Maryland.

MRS. JACK BRANDT and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bracht went to Los Alamos, New Mexico last Friday to attend the Saturday afternoon wedding of Miss Jacqueline Farmer and Mickey Barnett. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Otis Farmer. Mrs. Farmer will be remembered as Pauline Higgins, daughter of the Henry Brachts. Mark Brandt, who was ring bearer, went by plane on Thursday. At the reception, which followed the wedding, Sadie Brandt served the wedding cake.

EARNEST AND LOIS Stocker have another little granddaughter, Danielle Michelle, who arrived at Neblett Memorial Hospital on May 21. Parents of Danielle are Billy and Vicki Stocker. The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Dan Vale, who live in North Carolina.

WE HAD GUESTS over the Memorial Day holiday. Lewie Jr. came over from Pampa, Tom came from Clovis, Andy and Edith Raef and Nancy came from Ft. Worth, Don and Gracie Raef and children, Mike and Margaret Browder, Mary Raef, Kathy Goodin, and Carolyn Cloninger came from Amarillo, and Marion and Suzy Hicks and boys from Umbarger. We had planned a picnic at Buffalo Lake, but because it was so blustery, we picnicked at home.

Buffalo Lake Petition Gains Names

THE EARNEST STOCKERS went to Plainview Saturday to attend funeral services for R.M. Francis, a cousin of Mrs. Stocker. Mr. Francis was an instructor at T.S.T.I., at Waco.

SGT. LOUIS BRANDT, who is stationed at Randolph Air Force Base, in San Antonio, visited his parents, the Dennis Brandts, over the Memorial Day holiday.

ACCORDING TO LARRY Wynn, who works at Buffalo Lake, some 17,500 channel catfish were put into the lake last Saturday. Larry said that the fish are from 8 to 10 inches long. Sure ought to be some good fishing down there.

I GUESS THAT'S all for this time. Be sure to call me, if you have news for my column.

More Employees Needed For Summer Work, Pond Says

County Judge Woody Pond sent out a plea this week for Canyon youngsters or Vietnam War veterans who seek summer employment to contact his office.

The judge also asked that non-profit organizations with needs for employees contact his office.

A dozen summer jobs for disadvantaged youth, students home from school and Vietnam veterans are available in Canyon this summer through a federally-sponsored employment program.

Pond announced the program in mid-May and has received applications for employment from a half-dozen persons. He has received word of only a few jobs for the dozen who can be employed here this summer.

The federal program provides $1.60 per hour wages for youngsters.

The program requires that job priorities be given non-profit organizations.

The program will cover a nine-week period from June into August.

Pond received this week guidelines defining the categories available for employment.

The program is open to employ disadvantaged youths who are not less than 14 years old nor more than 22 years old and who are members of families with income below the poverty level and who do not have suitable employment; Vietnam-era and disabled veterans who are not more than 29 years old; and students on vacation from school who are not disadvantaged.

Teacher Exams

The National Teacher Examinations will be given to prospective teachers at West Texas State University July 21.

Dr. Kenneth Waugh, director of the WTSU Testing and Counseling Center, says the deadline for registering is June 28.

What To Do With 3 Months Vacation

One of the most enticing things about the teaching profession is that blissful three-month hiatus during the summer, when weary pedagogues can take a break from paper-grading and lesson-preparing and do their own thing.

At Canyon Junior High School, two teachers plan to spend their leisurely months in activities as rich and creative as that fascinating career they pursue nine months of the year. They are Mack White, ~~Industrial~~ Arts teacher, and Gene Murray, choir director.

White dismissed his pupils this week and now plans to get down to work on his two-section farm-ranch located about 17 miles south of Canyon.

With his son, Jay, who graduated this week from Canyon High School, White will be busy putting in a grain sorghum crop, moving cattle to the grass, and plowing down 400 acres of wheat reduced to "stubs" after the year's hail storms. Although he says farming is his hobby, and teaching his real love, he adds that at $60 an acre, the 100 per cent damage done to his wheat crop makes it pretty hard to look at his farming as an interesting sideline.

Only recently did White learn to meld his two interests—industrial arts and farming—into yet another absorbing interest. A couple of years ago, he said, he and his son were "piddling around their big quonset barn during one of the rainy spells we had."

Looking at the piles of welding rods, bailing wire, tin cans and galvanized tin, the artisan in White told him something could be done with all this "junk." And that was when he created his first windmill, an unusually realistic rendering of what was once the farmer's greatest necessity in the Panhandle brought down to scale by a farmer himself.

People like his windmills so much that White has had no trouble finding buyers for his work. In fact, he's now working on a commission to produce 100 mills for one admirer. Two windmills will be exhibited in the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation's Windmill Competition scheduled for the opening of "Texas" on June 21.

Since that rainy day in the barn, White has branched out in his intent to make junk a thing of beauty. Among other things, he has collected and mounted barbed wire (his oldest pieces go back to the 1860's,) inlaid those old post office box doors in white pine boxes lined in red velvet, and mounted on plaques old, rusty Mexican spurs.

His hobby can almost be called a family affair since a nephew working in Mexico supplies him with interesting material, including the spurs and, recently, with unusual silver amulets called milagros (miracles) used by Mexican peasants in their religious observations. White takes the milagros, which depict a variety of things in daily life which the Mexican peasant wants the priest to pray for, and mounts them on velvet-covered plaques. Another relative supplies the scraps of top-quality velvet—which he gets from the coffin factory where he works.

Some of White's work is displayed at Stevens Flowers, which is owned and operated by his wife, Shirley.

Also pursuing aesthetic ends during his three-month vacation is Gene Murray, CJHS choir director, whose paintings depicting moods and scenes from his childhood, have raised quite a sensation among his friends.

In past years, the multi-talented instructor has sung, danced and acted in the Paul Green musical drama "Texas" during his summer holiday. But this year, he says he's "saturated" with the performing arts, and is going to devote full time to going to school for his own pleasure (he plans to take speech and English at WTSU) as well as put in many hours on his art work.

He says he will be making more of the delicate plaques covered with flowers, mushrooms and things which friends have been putting in orders for all year long.

But his real "kick" now, he says, is painting scenes of his boyhood, spent on a Dust Bowl farm near Childress during the Depression years. ("We nearly starved to death then," he says).

Now on display in the CJHS library is one of his pictorial recollections showing "Mother and me trying to turn off a windmill that was about to be blown over by a windstorm." Another one of his works shows the same lean youngster waving a cup towel across a grassy ocean to his father, beckoning the latter in to tell him the news that the war was over.

"I don't try to make us look the way we really looked. I'm just trying to create the mood," Murray says.

By far the most utilitarian hobby that Murray has is one that until recently was kept a well-guarded secret. He makes all his own clothes, and many for his two sons, Jeff, 13, and Pat, 9.

"Sewing has always been so much associated with women's work, that I didn't like to tell people I did it," he says. "But recently when I wore a home-made purple velvet suit to a choir concert, everyone wanted to know where I got it. So, I told them."

Murray learned to sew when he served as a member of the Presidential Honor Guard under the Eisenhower administration. Since the uniforms had to fit perfectly, one member out of every guard company had to be trained to tailor uniforms so they could "expand or contract" with the changing weight of their wearers. Murray got the job, and "after taking apart and putting back together over 100 uniforms, I knew how to sew."

He always uses double-knit, he says, since he finds that fabric especially comfortable and durable. The economy of such a hobby is apparent, since he estimates that he can make a $40 suit for $8. This summer, he says he'll be making light-weight sports coats for his two boys.

These are just two examples that go far in answering the little-known question of where teachers go after the bell has rung and the halls have emptied. With all respect to the three R's and book-learning, teachers have to have their summer fun, too.

Savings Bonds Total $18,000

During April there were new purchases of Series E and H United States Savings Bonds amounting to $18,455 according to Don Max Vars, chairman of the Randall County savings bonds committee.

Sales for the first four months totaled $77,263 for 35 percent of the yearly sales goal of $220,000.

April sales in Texas totaled $19,525,843 exceeding last year's $17,331,291 by $2,194,552. Year-to-date sales amounted to $83,-791,839, an increase of $9,533,410 over 1972 sales of $74,258,429.

Nationwide, monthly sales were $562 million, 11.8 percent above 1972 sales of $502 million. Exchanges of Series E and Savings Notes for Series H Bonds amounting to $30 million were reported for April, 13 percent above the $27 million exchanged last year.

Canyon "Woman For All Seasons" Spreads The Word About Texas

By ANN MELIN

For those bemoaning the decline in "rugged individualism" in America, there's hope — and it lives in a back office of the Texas Panhandle Historical Foundation ("Texas").

In the era of public relations — when huge, impersonal advertising agencies are able to keep their products continously before the public eye — one can find right here in Canyon a person that accomplishes much the same thing as the biggies — with equal efficiency and infinitely more finesse.

That's Margaret Harper — wife and mother, founder and public relations director of "Texas," writer, civic leader, public speaker and conversant traveller. That she defies adjectives is beyond question. Expressions like "rugged individualism," "one-man army," and "renaissance man" are descriptive only when put in feminine gender — merely proving that today is also the era of the Woman.

As she leads her visitors to her tiny niche in the "Texas" office, she'll nearly always apologize for the mess and disorganization. And if one is a newcomer to "Texas," he'll take her at her word. But for the seasoned visitors, it's hard to suppress a smile. Never was a seeming mess so really neat, so very efficient.

Entering Mrs. Harper's office, which smells decidedly of freshly-Xeroxed paper (she says she never lets a thing go out without sending it through her machine), she'll ask about one's relatives, chat awhile, then sit down at her paper-covered desk and produce, just like that, charts, statistics, cast sheets and all that anyone could ever need to know about "Texas."

She is also a journalist's delight. Reporters are supposed to dig, dig, dig for interesting and unusual items, and sometimes keeping one's eyes always open is a pretty laborious task. But when a journalist enters Mrs. Harper's office they need only take a pile of papers off a chair, and relax. Mrs. Harper literally has "gotten it all together."

She can tell you, for instance, what each member of the "Texas" cast does when he's not on stage, where he lives, who his relatives are, what his hobbies are. She doesn't go about this idly, either. Each cast member must fill out a sheet for her providing this information. Not only does this provide helpful hints for features on the players, it also serves as one of the many mailing lists for "Texas" stories. Mrs. Harper personally oversees the mailing out of individual stories to the hometown newspapers of fathers, mothers, children, grandmothers, aunts and uncles.

She also encourages "good-news" spreading among the cast members, as well as her Canyon friends. Actors are encouraged to write about their experiences in outdoor theater — and she certainly writes her friends all over the world. One source reported that whenever her friends are planning vacations, she pleasantly suggests they "drop by my office and pick up some Texas brochures to leave in your motel rooms."

But this is all unofficial, informal "Texas" boosting. The real thing is truly astounding. Leaving the office a moment, Mrs. Harper comes back with a long box about half-full of post card-size mail. "This is just our off-season mail, of course," she casually remarks.

When the indomitable Mrs. Harper conceived of the idea of "Texas" seven years ago, no one really believed it would be as successful as it has been. Whenever one remarks about the impressive progress the show's made, Mrs. Harper smiles the smile of a proud mother and says something like "We have come long way, haven't we? You know we drew 82,228 people in 1972."

After that first successful year, after the musical saga of Calvin Armstrong's struggle to tear a sustenance out of the prairie sod had won its way into the hearts of many, Margaret Harper could have sat back, said "That's good," and left her brainchild to its own workings. But that wasn't her style. There's no accurate way of completely gauging just how many of the 499,757 people from all over the world found their way to "Texas," but there is no doubt that a great many read about it in one of several hundred newspapers, journals, magazines or travelogues which Mrs. Harper provided with the "good news."

A West Texan has to smile with pride when amidst the news of Broadway shows he spies "Texas" in the New York Times or the New Yorker (Yes, Mrs. Harper told them about it, too.) Reviews of the show in magazines like Newsweek are invariably favorable, and excerpts are reprinted in brochures by Mrs. Harper at the end of each season.

The off-season finds the "Texas" offices buzzing long after the echo of the music of brightly-clad cowboys and their gals has disappeared from the Canyon.

In the fall, business manager Raymond Raillard attends travel shows all over the country. He attended ten this year, Mrs. Harper says, including shows in California and Houston. He brings with him large 9 x 8 ft. color posters of the show.

Audition announcements go out, too. The mailing list includes 10,000 newspapers, magazines, college drama departments and libraries. More brochures in the spring. More press releases of interesting statistics ranging from the geographical distribution of the last year's audiences to the amount of energy one of the lead dancers expended during rehearsals (he wore a heartbeat-measuring device). Mrs. Harper's enthusiasm for facts and figures is insatiable.

Mrs. Harper, directors William and Margaret Moore, musical director Royal Brantley and choreographer Neil Hess hold auditions early in the year, hearing actors both in the WTSU Branding Iron Theatre as well as in Lubbock, Dallas, Oklahoma City and several other cities.

The selection is sometimes a grueling process — the task of finding a Calvin or Elsie with just the right style and just the right voice being a Herculean one. And after the choices are made, the cast becomes a well-guarded secret until just before showtime, much to the chagrin of the press. It's at this time that those "Oh, wouldn't you just like to know?" looks abound among the "Texas" makers.

Mrs. Harper is especially proud of "Texas" ' presence in the Texas Tourist Development agency's new travelogue — "one of the most beautiful I've ever seen," she says. But she's not content to admire its "Texas" illustrations.

"We receive from the TTD the names and addresses of all people who express interest either directly in the show, or inquire about the Hill Trail, one of ten Texas routes and the one on which people coming from the West have to travel upon, thus bringing them into this area."

Edna Cone volunteered to take on the duty of acknowledging all of these inquiries. "I told her she didn't know what she was taking on, but she said the job was just what she was looking for," Mrs. Harper says. She then fishes out of the pile on her desk a thick list of names with addresses of people who, upon brief scanning, look like they represent every state in the Union.

Also turned up by Mrs. Harper was a Xeroxed sheet entitled "Commentary Bouquets from 1972 Shows" with quotes like "I want Austin friends to know more about "Texas," "We have several Catholic nuns from Germany at our hospital here who are terribly interested in our Texas way of life." From Kentucky a printed comment reads "Your brochures go very fast here . . .," from Massachusetts, "Please keep us on your mailing list," from New Mexico "happy to recommend it to my visitors who come to Taos from all over the world!", and from Virginia, a terse "Nothing but good."

Before one leaves her office, one looks at her detailed chart listing all material sent out on "Texas" from October to present. Musing aloud, one wonders what the total count on press material sent out would be. Mrs. Harper is immediately on her toes. An adding machine total is quickly taken. 43,640, the tape reads.

"Now, of course that doesn't include a lot of our first class things, the letters I write, the letters the Moores write, the brochures in motels, and then of course there's . . ."

The redoubtable Mrs. Harper has been watching over her brainchild, "Texas," since the musical drama's founding seven years ago. As the show whirrs into another summer season in Palo Duro Canyon's Pioneer Amphitheatre, the irrepressible lady is making ready for that June evening when a lone horseman makes his way to the top of the Canyon.

Many To West Texas State

Seniors Will Stay Here—For Awhile

By WARD JACOBS

Canyon is not in danger of losing it's young population — not this year anyway.

Most seniors graduating from Canyon High School this year indicated that they will stay in the community to work and continue their education. Most area seniors who will attend college plan to go to West Texas State University.

For Rhonda Jo Hales, high school experience is going to help through college in more than just an academic way. This summer she is going to finish a cosmetology course which she began in high school. Rhonda says she will then work as a beautician to defray the costs of higher education.

She will enter WTSU this fall and then transfer to Amarillo College after the first semester.

John Aragon, another graduating senior, says he will work this summer and then possibly enter WTSU. He 'isn't really sure' whether he will continue working or go on to college.

Sue Fischbacher intends to enroll at WTSU in the fall as a psychology major. Sue lists her summer plans as 'nothing.'

Kent Bond said he is going to work this summer at a local department store and then go to Amarillo College as a freshman. Tony Burrus will spend the summer 'looking for a job' and also plans to continue his education at WTSU.

Debra Melton will get an early jump on the rest of her class as she attends the summer semester at WTSU. She also plans to work at the college cafeteria.

Three Locals Are Certified

Three Canyon area men have been awarded certificates of competency by the Texas Department of Health.

James A. Huey, who works for Siesta Mobile Homes, Roger L. Jones, who works for Siesta Mobile Homes, and Robert Rapp, who works for the City of Canyon have received the certification.

The three men received training through the Texas Water Utilities Association in effective ways of producing safe drinking water and treatments to make wasted water into clean streams for public use.

To receive the certification, the three completed both a formal and a specialized education, accumulated a prescribed amount of work experience and passed an examination administered by the State Health Department's sanitary engineers.

Grant Awarded

Randall County will be one of the counties served under a $253,084 grant awarded this week to the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation.

Congressman Bob Price has announced that the grant has been awarded the group through the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The program funded will extend over a nine-month period for 600 children in 23 counties.

Business To Be Taught At University

How often have you heard a response to the question, "What do you do?" with "Oh, I'm in business."

What is business? What are such activities as research, marketing, advertising, management, finance and banking, accounting or personnel work?

The West Texas State University School of Business is offering a Survey of Business, BA 110, during the first session of summer school, June 5-July 12 to answer these questions. The class time is 10:30 a.m. to 11:50 Monday through Friday each week.

J. Stuart Lawrance, assistant professor of business, said the course is designed for persons desiring a general understanding of typical business activities.

He said the course should assist the young student contemplating majoring in business to make up his mind or the wife to understand what her husband means when he says he is in "business."

Registration for the first summer session is June 4.

Trial Monday For Lolmaugh

Marvin Edward Lolmaugh, 30, of Amarillo is due to stand trial Monday on a charge of murdering his father-in-law.

Dist. Atty. George Dowlen said he expects the trial to continue at least through Wednesday in 181st District Court here.

Bob McClendon, assistant Dist. Atty. will be prosecutor in the case.

Lolmaugh, who is charged with the Nov. 9, 1972 shooting death of Leonard Eugene Mullin, 50, of Amarillo, is represented by Canyon attorney Harris Hampton.

State. . .

fix facilities at the park.

Most of the purchases were made at local stores.

One merchant told The News Mullican would often seek to buy an item from his store for use at the park and would ask that the item be charged. In several cases, the merchant said, Mullican would later fill out the appropriate state forms for the merchandise and receive funding from the state to pay the bill.

But, for $2649 in merchandise, Mullican failed to fill out state paperwork and the bills have gone unpaid for at least 3½ years.

Mullican was fired from his job in 1968 after officials of the parks and wildlife department called for an investigation into an alleged slush fund the park officials was operating to gain cash for minor purchases for park improvements.

A Randall County grand jury investigated the charges and later produced a report which said Mullican was not guilty of any wrong-doing.

Parks and wildlife department officials told The News in January they are aware the state owes the more than $2600 to Canyon and Amarillo merchants.

But, they claimed the law has prevented them from paying the outstanding bills.

The attorney general had previously been asked to rule on whether the funds could be paid and ruled they could not.

Sorghum. . .

Randall County is not a leading grain sorghum producing county in the Panhandle, and not enough is produced even to feed all the cattle in feedyards in the county.

More than 100,000 head of cattle are in county feedyards.

2nd Detroiter Signs With WT In Basketball

Mark Mayberry became the second all-city basketball player from Detroit to sign an athletic scholarship agreement with West Texas State University in the past two weeks.

Mayberry earned all-city honors both his junior and senior years at Northwestern High School. Darnell Williams, an all-city player from Cooley High School, inked with the Buffaloes last week.

The 6-1, 170-pound Mayberry averaged 18 points per game for outstanding Northwestern teams both his junior and senior seasons. Northwestern was 20-4 his junior year and compiled a 22-4 mark this past season.

While playing as a regular for the past two seasons Mayberry shot 50 per cent of his field goal attempts true and hit 85 per cent of his free throws.

"We had eight players scoring from eight to 18 points per game," said Northwestern coach James Boyce. "Had we not had that kind of balance, Mark could have scored 30 points per game."

Besides being all-city this past season Mayberry was a third team all-state selection. He and Williams will compete this week in the Roundball Classic, an all-star game in Detroit.

"Mark is an exceptional jump shooter from long range and is a great driver," said Boyce. "His quick hands and feet allow him to be a standout on defense."

Northwestern was 12-0 to earn the division championship, won district and was then runnerup in the regional finals.

A team co-captain, Mark is the younger brother of Kansas City Royal first baseman John Mayberry. Mark was a star infielder until he gave up the sport following his junior year to concentrate on basketball.

Jerry Goss, who reached the Class AAAA state high school finals this spring, has signed an athletic scholarship agreement with West Texas State University tennis coach David Kent.

Goss defeated San Antonio's Charles Emily in the meet earlier this month at Austin to reach the finals. He lost to Wichita Falls junior John Brotherton in the finals.

"Jerry is one of the top high school tennis players in the Southwest," said Kent. "He holds wins over another West Texas State signee — Brett Hall of Houston."

Goss, 6-0 and 160, played for former Amarillo High School coach Pete Barazon at San Angelo Central High School. An honor student in high school, he plans to major in accounting at West Texas State and eventually to become an attorney.

Goss is the fourth player to be signed by Kent this spring. Hall has reached the Class AAAA semi-finals for the past two seasons.

Beef. . .

BREWER'S BEEF WITH SURPRISE NOODLES

The secret to this recipe lies in SIMMERING the beef. Trying to "rush" the process by boiling only toughens the meat. Allow 2½ for this to cook, though not all of this time need be spent in the kitchen.

3 lbs lean, cubed Texas Beef (Round or Chuck is fine)
flour to coat
¼ cup or more bacon drippings
1 bell pepper, chopped
2 Tbls. flour
1 pkg. Lipton onion soup mix
½ t. garlic powder
½ t. parsley flakes
2 cans light beer
½ cup canned sliced mushrooms
1 bay leaf.

Coat Texas Beef Cubes in flour (shake off excess flour). Crop cubes in hot fat until lightly browned on all sides. Remove beef and set aside. Add bell peppers and cook until they begin to soften. Then add remaining dry ingredients, stirring constantly until flour begins to brown. Continue to stir while gradually adding the beer. Add the beer, mushrooms, and bay leaf. Simmer, covered, 1½ hours or more. Remove cover and continue cooking approximately 30 minutes, or until liquid is thinned. Remove bay leaf and serve over surprise noodles.

SURPRISE NOODLES

1 pt. sour cream
½ t. onion powder
½ t. garlic powder
½ c. canned, sliced mushrooms, drained
1 small or medium can crushed pineapple (well or partially drained, to suit your taste)
8-12 oz. drained, cooked noodles
8 or more sliced crisp bacon, crumbled

Combine first 5 ingredients, bring to boil; simmer 1 minute, stir into hot, drained noodles. Stir in crumbled bacon just prior to serving.

Lake. . . money.

Pond said he feels the lake should not be closed.

Ferguson has said the current year budget for operation of the lake is $17,000. Just over $17,000 has been requested for next year.

In response to the possibility that the lake might be closed, the Umbarger Community Association has circulated a petition in Umbarger.

More than 500 names have been placed on the petitions, which may be signed at the Umbarger Grocery or Umbarger Fisherman's Supply.

Although Ferguson has been told Buffalo Lake is scheduled to be closed if Congress cuts the federal Department of the Interior budget, Congressman Bob Price has also checked into the situation.

A Price spokesman told The News last week that the decision to close the lake has not yet been made.

The spokesman said other alternatives are also open, alternatives which would still leave the lake open.

Personnel could be cut, he noted as one alternative to reduce costs.

Pot. . .

dividing line should have been around one or two ounces of marijuana rather than four.

"It just seems to me that four ounces is so much more than the ordinary person carries around with him," Dowlen said. He said a lid, the most common quantity purchased at a price from $8 to $15, is technically one ounce.

Dowlen says that approximately 20 persons in the county, either serving prison sentences or on probation under the old law, as well as about 15 persons now under indictment, may be directly affected by the bill's provision providing for petition to the trial judge for resentencing under the new one.

He does not foresee that the change will significantly affect county courts, but may relax pressure on district court dockets because the latter hears felony cases, which are expected to decrease with the easier marijuana legislation. Relieving the congestion in courts arising from numerous marijuana possession cases was among the many arguments outlined by proponents of the easier laws.

Dowlen, Stewart and Longest all stated that they were definitely against the legalization of marijuana.

"One simple thing keeps sticking in my mind," said Longest. "People say there's no effect from use of marijuana. But whenever I've talked to one of these mainline narcotics addicts, it seems he always says 'well, it all started when I got to smoking grass when I was a kid.'"

Palisades Palaver

Residents Paint Gate, Plant Evergreens

By MILDRED TURNER

TALKED TO CATHY Webb this week and she said the Merry Makers were not meeting this summer but will have a "Camp Out" sometime in June.

LAST THURSDAY MORNING the ladies met to work on the gate: Edith Stevens, Estelle Atherson, Nell Moore, Judy Webb (with Laura) and Mildred Turner. We painted, stained and set out some evergreens. Nell had to make two trips before they got our stain right. At noon, we settled under a tree for a picnic lunch. Nell shared the Copper Penny Salad (from the Tasting Tea recipes) with us.

JOINING IN THE work in the afternoon or evening were Onnie Atherson, Gene Webb, Dan Bailey, Charles Hooker, Jack Stevens and Joyce McDonald. It happened that I had my camera along that day so I think I got some goodies. I was not the only one who knew how to use the camera. There were some bubble gum bubbles and lively conversation throughout the day.

THE MEN, (UNDER Nell's instructions) did a great job on our cross tie arrangement. They did the work in one afternoon which would have taken us days to do.

LUM AND LENA Edwards came through on their way to Amarillo to celebrate Lena's birthday. She explained that she could not work on her birthday, that she and Reba Guess would work Friday morning (which they did). Lena did not look any older than she did last week at the picnic. We had to visit a little with everyone who came through the gate, who was not too rushed. The more who get interested in the gate, the more help we have! As Lum and Lena returned, Lena was all smiles as she told us of a new double door refrigerator, blender and I don't remember what all she got for her birthday. We decided Lum must be up to something (like "his" and "hers" doors, with groceries so high!) Lena had a wonderful birthday and we teased Lum by painting h.s nose, snapping his picture as he came through the gate on his tractor grading the small byroad.

MARCELLA AND BUSTER Carlile are expecting . . . Jerry Carlile home for three or four days this week. Buster won the Trophy Dash at the Micro Midget races this past week. He came in third in the finals. Timmy's team, from Gene Howe, lost in their baseball game this week. Better luck next time, Timmy.

EDITH AND JACK Stevens have returned from a two week visit with their daughter, Carolyn and Ralph Bengston and family, of Supulpa, Oklahoma. Back during the snow and ice, Carolyn had fallen, hurting her back and neck. She had to have surgery later after spending time in traction. The doctors had to remove a bone from her hip making a disk for her neck (sounds terrible). She has to wear a brace on her neck now. Edith and Jack helped with the grand ones, encouraged Carolyn to take care of herself. Edith says they were gone two weeks but got behind a month in the yard and are working hard to catch up.

WHILE WE WERE working on the gate the other day, Pearl Vaughn came through on her way to the doctor. She was handing the power saw up to her son and accidentally touched the button. It did not damage the bone and is healing nicely. Pearl has gone right on working (bookkeeping and making drapes). I knew all of you would want to know how her finger is doing.

THE PALISADERS AS a whole seemed to have a quiet, serene Memorial Day. Several were catching up on yard and garden work (even in the wind) then getting together with family or friends in the quiet of the evening. Someone said the wind was worse on top. The Webbs, McDonalds, Dennis Mitchell and Ricky Cook played baseball all afternoon. J. R. and Jackie Horne stopped briefly as they were out bicycling with a weekend guest, Jeff Penton. (Jackie promised to call me the details on her recent trip to California.) Robert Boothe yelled across the street that they were going to Thompson Park, inviting Marcia (and her family) to go with them. Some visited the cemetery, others had planned to go to the lake but the wind had discouraged that idea. I heard of a few gripes about the children being in school, couldn't plan much. Sheree and Rhonda Webb had a first class test and were out the rest of the day. Janet had a first period test and a last period test. Shortly after the girls got home, they had to study for Tuesday tests. Young people study differently today. They want the radio, TV, and record player going, lights dim. Back in the olden days we were supposed to have a good light, and fairly quiet place to study. I said all that to say this: our Memorial Day was "different" this year in the canyon.

IF YOUR SULSCRIPTION to the Canyon News has run out, please renew through me and I will benefit by it. You may think you're too busy this summer, but just remember you need to keep up with what's going on, use it to line the waste basket, or bird cage and it really is not like reading a "larger" paper. You can finish the Canyon News in a few minutes. How's that for a first commercial! My number is 622-0701.

AS I WAS out today, the wind almost took my hat once, so I put my hand up to hold it. A man passing by tipped his hat and looked at me rather oddly like "Times have changed." If you see him, please tell him "I was not tipping my hat," merely trying to keep it on.

JUDY DETTEN HAS an egg route now. She will bring fresh eggs once a week down to the Palisades. I'm not sure what day but I think she will be down on Thursdays. She is letting us have them for 50 cents a dozen. Her number is 622-0191.

SINCE SCHOOL IS out (and I have been sending my column in by Janet), I will be mailing my news in on Saturday so have your news in by Friday night. Two people have just written the details of their news and dropped it by which was helpful. If you can't get my phone try this or leave it in my paper tube (across from the Boothe's). If news gets too scarce, I may discontinue through the summer. I enjoy writing it up if I just have the news. If I don't have news, I get to rambling, as you have probably noticed!

Laugh a little, sing a little,
As you go on your way;
Work a little, play a little,
Do this every day.

Give a little, take a little,
Never mind a frown . . .
Make your smile a welcomed thing.
All around the town.

Laugh a little, love a little,
Skies are always blue;
Every cloud has a silver lining,
But it's up to you.

The mosquitoes must have arrived. Late last week, the city sent this truck into town spraying a white insecticide to kill the adult insects. Spraying is due to continue throughout the summer.

Eastern Star Order To Install Officers

The Canyon City Chapter No. 105 of the Order of the Eastern Star will conduct installation of new officers in a meeting scheduled at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Masonic Hall.

Installing officers include officer Ione Martin, marshall Alleene Leake, chaplain Jim Cabe, organist Moira Myrle Wheelock and secretary Faye Byars.

The new officers for 1973-74 are Anna M. Wright, worthy patron; Billy Mayfield, worthy patron; Doris Gillham, worthy associate matron; Jack Parsons, worthy associate patron; Alma Perkins, secretary; Bettie Davis, treasurer; Aileen Hardaway, conductress, and Jan Boone, associate conductress.

Also, Marie Mayfield, chaplain; Ada Busteed, marshall; Cortez Dowlen, organist; Kathleen Glazener, Adah; Georgine Tirey, Ruth; Naomi Bewley, Esther; Cindy Gruner, Martha; Betty Nash, Electa; Jesse Bewley, Warder, and Winifred Donnell, Sentinel.

The program for the meeting will include musical selections by Stacie Wright, Bible presentations by Billy Mayfield and Flag Presentation by Terry Mayfield.

200 Sign-up For Recreation

More than 230 Canyon youngsters have signed up already to participate in the city-sponsored summer recreation program which begins June 18.

Dr. A.J. Luquette, who is heading the program, said mail applications for registration will be accepted right up until the starting date for the program.

The summer recreation program includes activities such as tennis, bowling, swimming, drama, tumbling, trampoline, twirling, cheerleading, physical fitness and golfing.

Applications should be mailed to the City Hall.

Ruins Of Ancient Greece Explored By City Pair

Spring often brings a restless feeling and the desire to explore far away places.

When the old, seasonal urge to rove recently attacked Georgia Blackwell and Ruth Cross, they took off for a four-week tour of scenic and historic sites in Greece, the Aegean Isles, Turkey, and Rome, plus a stopover in England. Georgia is the wife of George Blackwell, local businessman, and Ruth is retired from a position held many years as dean of women at West Texas State University.

As friends of long standing, the two women were well matched traveling companions in their determination to cram as much sightseeing as possible into the time permitted. Mrs. Blackwell said they earned somewhat of a "mad dog, the Texans," reputation for their stamina in trudging out to view the foreign tourist attractions in spite of frequent showers. "While others would sit there wailing about the cold, rainy weather, we would bid them goodbye, saying, 'We have a tour scheduled today.' Our raincoats got a lot of wear."

Actually, Miss Cross had planned her trip earlier in the year, knowing that she would visit with her brother Homer in New York and be welcomed in Athens by another brother, Earl, temporarily stationed there with an American consulting firm. But her partner's decision was spur-of-the-moment.

Leaving Amarillo by air on March 28, the two travelers "ate their way across the Atlantic," in the words of Mrs. Blackwell. She explained they had three meals before departing New York, and three more meals aboard their 747 before landing in Athens the following day.

Their first jaunt was a four-day bus tour of the Peloponnisian peninsula, the southernmost part of Greece crammed with shrines sacred to the ancient world. After spending the first night in Nauplion, they found themselves next day in Olympia where the first athletic contests were held and a museum "full of gorgeous sculpture" now stands. From there the group went next to Delphi, 2500 years ago held to be the center of the world because so many pilgrims came seeking truth from the oracle of Apollo. Socrates himself was said to have visited the spot now the site of temple ruins.

The four-day tour also included a visit to old Corinth, and the two Canyon women stood where Paul had spoken at the dawn of the Christian era. A view of the "plains of Sparta" and Agamemnon's tomb were other points of interest.

"What they call 'plains' are really valleys," said Mrs. Blackwell. She added that the terrain was so rugged one little old lady got "seasick" from the twisting, turning bus ride. At one point where the road threatened to become impassable, the group dismounted to cheer on the workmen.

As soon as they arrived back in Athens, Mrs. Blackwell, Miss Cross and her brother and sister-in-law took off on a week's cruise of the Aegean Sea, touching Crete, Rhodes, Kusedasi, Ephesus, Istanbul, Delos and Mykons. Their ship, "The Orion," was a typical cruise ship serving sumptious seven-course meals and providing many kinds of amusements while on board. But the two Canyon women found the weather cool and sailing rough at the start of their voyage, and spent much of their time conserving strength for the daily stopovers at tourist sites.

The labyrinth palace at Minos on Crete and the city of Rhodes where the Knights of St. John had a hospital during the Crusades were the first two stops. Then stopping at the port of Kusadasi, they took a bus trip to Ephesus, an ancient Roman city-state where Paul was charged with sacrilege to Artemis, revered pagan moon goddess.

Mrs. Blackwell described the marble streets and ruins of the Temple of Artemis as extremely beautiful, but found the guide's mundane comments on Paul a masterpiece of humorous understatement. "I remember him saying 'All right, this is where Paul stood. What would we do without St. Paul?" she recalled, smiling. They also saw there the Basilica of St. John where he was buried.

Their next stop was Istanbul—"so filthy, we were glad to leave." However, the two enjoyed their tour of the Blue Mosque, whose huge dome and minarets dominate the view of the city by the Bosporus. They walked barefoot through the mosque, whose floors were covered with priceless carpets. Also interesting was a visit to the Bazaar, with haggling merchants which matched those of any Mexican border town, said Georgia.

Their next destination was the island of Delos, where in mythology the abandoned Leto found haven and gave birth to Apollo and Artemis, making it the most renowned of islands. The Panhandle tourists found the island had only 10 inhabitants now, but was a mecca for sightseers with its ancient ruins of agoras, theaters and villas. They were impressed with the beautiful mosaics of the homes and the avenue flanked with marble lions. Their last stop before returning to Athens was at Mykonos, popular vacation spot for the "jet set."

Flying on to Rome, Mrs. Blackwell and Miss Cross stayed several days in a hotel "at the top of the Spanish Steps" while they toured the city. They found the city crowded, confused, and rather dirty. Two exceptional experiences lingered in Georgia's memory, however—being among those blessed by the Pope on Palm Sunday and running into two other Canyonites, Dr. and Mrs. John Green.

The final stopover for the women was three days in London. They decided to spend the time touring such points as Stonehenge, Canterbury, Oxford, and Stratford-on-Avon.

At a little village called Stanford-in-the-Vale, near Oxford, Ruth Cross found the tombstone of a direct ancestor, buried in 1854, who had been keeper of the "pike house" which operated the ferry. Seeing the house he had built and remnants of her people's bygone lives gave Miss Cross a special feeling of kinship with the town.

Visits to Blenheim Castle, the home of the Churchills, Canterbury Cathedral, and Warwick Castle were other memorable experiences for the women before returning home. They enjoyed lunching at quaint old inns and viewing the picturesque towns and countryside.

A day after leaving London, Georgia Blackwell and Ruth Cross were back in Canyon with tired feet and sore throats—but also with a store of treasured memories of their European jaunt.

Georgia Blackwell and Ruth Cross retrace on a map the path of their recent tour of Greece, Rome, and England. They planned the trip themselves, cramming visits to many historic and cultural points of interest along the way.

Mrs. Georgia Blackwell is pictured "walking the marble streets among ruins at Ephesus, one of the points of interest visited in April while she and Miss Ruth Cross were on an eight-day cruise of the Aegean Sea.

Senate Okays Regent Owen

The appointment of Wayne Owen, Lubbock cattleman, as a regent for West Texas State University was approved Monday by the State Senate.

Owen had been appointed last month by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to replace Boone Pickens, who resigned after blasting Board Chairman Cloyce K. Box of Dallas.

Owen is president of Owen Brothers Custom Feeding Co. of Lubbock. He is the second Lubbock regent to serve on the WTSU board.

DA Pay Bill Is Readied For Governor

A bill which would save Randall County voters $12,000 per year for the salary of Dist. Atty. George Dowlen now awaits Gov. Dolph Briscoe's signature.

Dowlen said Tuesday the bill appeared headed for defeat last week when Gov. Briscoe refused to sign it into law and returned it to the legislature for reworking.

The bill, authored by Dowlen to increase the state's funding for criminal district attornies in six Texas counties, had been reworked previously by the legislature.

Dowlen said the bill, which would increase the state portion to about $15,000 for criminal district attornies, was presented Briscoe last week with provisions for many smaller counties.

Apparently, he said, the governor felt the addition of the small counties to the bill unnecessary and returned it Friday to the legislature.

Although Dowlen has not seen the final version of the bill passed and sent to Briscoe, he believes it probably resembles the original bill.

Randall County commissioners have backed the legislation since it reduces the amount the county must pay of Dowlen's salary.

Currently, most counties in the state have constitutional district attornies. Randall County has a criminal district attorney, who must handle both misdemeanor and felony offenses.

The state currently pays $15,000 per year of a constitutional district attorney's salary while it pays about one-fourth that amount for a criminal district attorney's salary.

Secrecy Problem In Counselling

How much should parents be involved in decisions that are made concerning their children as a result of the professional activities of school counselors, educational diagnosticians and psychologists?

Too often, say two West Texas State University psychology professors, the activities of the school specialists are kept secret. Parents may not properly be involved in the counseling and testing experiences the school can provide for the child.

Drs. William M. Erwin and Thomas M. Cannon Jr., both formerly of Lubbock, have written an article dealing with what they call the mistaken perspective many school counselors have toward the issue of confidentiality. The work, Ethical Considerations in the Role of the School Counselor, is expected to appear in the Texas Personnel and Guidance Association Journal this fall.

In another article, Change and the School Psychologist, Cannon says another detrimental tendency in school counseling is that of "hiding behind jargon and cliches thus making testing results incomprehensible to the parent."

The article, which calls for a parent-geared test reporting procedure, was published in the March issue of the American Psychological Association's "The School Psychologist."

Erwin and Cannon propose a policy of "openness" between counselors and parents — a policy, they say, in which parents are granted the right to approve testing and counseling activities before such activities are accomplished and are allowed to participate in the final decision of what to do with the results.

An all-too-present tendency in current counseling procedures, the psychologists say, is that of divulging testing and counseling results to the teachers who requested the information and keeping the parents "in the dark" as to the counselor's findings. In some schools at the present time, testing results are not shared with parents even upon parental request, they say.

"Under the circumstances," Erwin says "some authorities feel it is unethical for the expert to tell teachers things not told to parents, or to make significant omissions in explanations to parents. When working with school youngsters, the parent, and not the teacher or the child, is the client."

School counselors are not legally protected in their professional roles in terms of confidentiality, Cannon says. If a counselor promises to a child "he will not tell," he is making a promise he may not be able to keep, Cannon adds.

Erwin says the psychological reports "should be designed to answer specific questions about the child's behavior or learning ability, rather than concentrating on probing deep-seated emotional problems.

"The reports should reveal information that parents might be able to profit from; that the counselor feels they are trained to cope with."

But if such emotional problems need to be explained to parents, it should be done in language that is completely comprehensible to the parent and not in the language often used by counselors "hiding behind a barricade of mystical terminology," the psychologists say.

Failure to properly involve parents also places counselors in legal danger as better-informed parents become increasingly sensitive to their legal rights, Cannon adds.

Some school systems in states outside of Texas have dropped testing and many counseling activities because of the risk of law suits by irate parents, he says.

D. Beerwinkles Greet Baby Girl

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Beerwinkle greeted the arrival on May 21, 1973, of a new baby daughter, Staci Diane, born at Neblett Memorial Hospital. She weighed 6 lbs. 5 ozs. and was 18½ inches long at birth.

The Beerwinkles reside in Canyon and have one older daughter, Shelli Donise, age 7.

The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Nickols of Pampa.

The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Beerwinkle of Temple.

The father is head of the department of animal science at West Texas State University and the mother is a housewife.

Arthritis Funds To Be Sought Here

More than 100 persons will participate in a house-to-house campaign to collect donations for the Panhandle Arthritis Foundation on Monday and Tuesday in Canyon.

In 1972, the campaign workers collected $628.

The home of Clyde Alsop of Canyon will be headquarters for the drive.

A spokesman for the foundation said there are 15,000 arthritics in Amarillo and Canyon, half the total number in the Texas Panhandle.

Sixty-five per cent of the money raised here stays in the local area, the spokesman said, with 35 per cent going to the national foundation for research and educational programs.

Canyon Dames Cancel Picnic

The Canyon Dames picnic scheduled for Sunday has been cancelled and a new date will be set at a later time, said Mrs. Douglas Williams, publicity chairman.

Organization members will be notified when the event is rescheduled.

Hospital Board To Eye Progress In Plans Today

The board of the South Randall County Hospital District will hear another report tonight from Bill O'Connell, Austin architect on a new $1.6 million proposed hospital facility for Canyon.

Administrator Ray Grimes said O'Connell is expected to report his progress to the board.

Planning on the 50-bed hospital is reaching a climax. O'Connell has said he hopes bids on the project can be let by early July with construction to begin not long after.

The board meets at 7:30 p.m. today in the community center.

Baby Girl Born To B.J. Webbs

A new baby girl, Brandy Ferrell, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bobbie J. Webb of 7611 Hermosa in Amarillo. She was born May 21, 1973, at Neblett Memorial Hospital weighing 7 lbs. 15 ozs. and measuring 20½ inches in length.

The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Howard of Albuquerque, N.M.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Webb of Thayer, Mo., are paternal grandparents.

The father is employed by the City of Amarillo as Water Treatment Plant Operator.

The mother is a secretary at the Veteran's Hospital in Amarillo.
